

CONTENTSFeatures*278*Viewpoint: Where are the conservationists?

Duane Sand says conservation professionals must stand up and be counted if the potential of the Food Security Act is to be realized

280Neighbor-to-neighbor conservation

Charlie Rahm relates how conservationists in Missouri are using self-guided farm tours to demonstrate conservation practices

282A wetland . . . is a wetland . . . is a wetland

Dale Marsh tells the personal case history of an "awful" wetland that escaped a much-called-for coup de grace

286A centennial profile: Walter Clay Lowdermilk

J. Douglas Helms reflects on the international career of Lowdermilk on the 100th anniversary of his birth

288Rainfall simulation: A tool for best management practice education

T. A. Dillaha, B. B. Ross, S. Mostaghimi, C. D. Heatwole, and V. O. Shanholtz outline how Virginia conservationists use a simulator to demonstrate soil erosion control practices

291After the CRP contract expires

Terry Cacek looks at some of the options that could be put in place now to extend the benefits of the Conservation Reserve Program

294The impacts of limited water: A Colorado case study

P. Lorenz Sutherland and John A. Knapp analyze the land use implications of water transfers from agricultural to urban uses

299Soil conservation history in Zimbabwe

Richard Whitlow reviews the history of commercial and peasant farming in this African nation and the effects it has had on soil erosion

304Schwimmkampen: Germany's artificial floating islands

Sven Hoeger describes the multiple-use benefits of a unique conservation practice used in Europe

Commentary307*The cost of excessive soil erosion

Peter J. Nowak challenges the traditional assumption that conservation does not pay because it does not capture all the costs of excessive soil erosion

Research reports321*Using the erosion-productivity impact calculator (EPIC) model to estimate the impact of soil erosion for the 1985 RCA appraisal

John Putman, Jimmy Williams, and David Sawyer

326Estimating soil loss on topographically nonuniform field and farm units

M. L. Griffin, D. B. Beasley, J. J. Fletcher, and G. R. Foster

331Conversion of forestland to oil and gas production in northern Louisiana: An evaluation

Ray A. Newbold, B. G. Lockaby, and Charles E. Thomas

333An evaluation of photographic scale in aerial photography for identification of conservation practices

R. E. Pelletier and R. H. Griffin II

338Influence of previous erosion on crusting behavior of Cecil soils

W. P. Miller, C. C. Truman, and G. W. Langdale

341Using ground-penetrating radar to investigate variability in selected soil properties

C. C. Truman, H. F. Perkins, L. E. Asmussen, and H. D. Allison

345Defining, implementing, and evaluating grazing management strategies

H. Reed Sanderson, Thomas M. Quigley, and Lou R. Spink

348Soil taxonomy and surveys: Classification of areal sensitivity to pesticide contamination of groundwater

R. R. Teso, T. Younglove, M. R. Peterson, D. L. Sheeks III, and R. E. Gallavan
